

1. A method of increasing sodium excretion levels in a hypertensive subject, the method comprising:

engaging the subject in limited exercise training for a period of time sufficient to increase sodium excretion levels in the subject.